It was the anniversary of the day the congregation bad assembled for the last time in the old church, and the same old bell in a new belfry rang out a joyful bidding to a new church home. The handsome edifice, exactly on the site of the and Fifth avenue, is not yet entirely com pleted, but so much of the Sunday school of its use temporarily until the church proper is in readiness for eccupancy. The Sunday school first met, and at 10:30 o'clock a large congregation assembled. Rev. G. W. Gue, the zealous pastor, conducted the services which opened with the singing of the doxology "Oh, for a Heart to Praise, My God," Rev. Kaufman offered a prayer of toanks giving, and Mr. Gue read from the scripelations. The hymn, "How Firm a winter. Foundation Ye Saints of the Lord," and "Come Unto Me," were sung, and Mr. Gue made a few remarks upon the new church building. The service he said, was not intended to be of a dedicatory nature. The formal dedication would take place about the first Sunday in September when Bishop Merrill would be present. He then preached a sermon from the text, "The Books Were Openhe should see that his record was clearly says: written to the end that he may not be afraid to have it read in that latter day when it shall be produced and opened before the judgment sest on high. In the evening a service of a song occurred. The sides of the pulpit were beautifully adorned with flowers.

He returned to Knoxville this morning. and on Thursday will come to Rock Island with his family and occupy the rectory during the remainder of the summer. There will be services next Friday

Enforcing the Game Law of Illinois The supreme court of Illinois in a recent decision affirms the constitutionality of the game laws of Illinois, and affirms the judgment of the lower court. The law was passed at the last session of the legislature, and the new feature was the absolute prohibition of the selling of game, as well as its transportation for sale. Last fall the American Express company received and delivered quail to a Chicago commission house. The company was fined $200 in the county court for the violation, and to test the law the case was taken to the supreme court, which has just handed down a paternal decision affirming the judgment of the county court. Counsel for the company raised two principal points-the unconstitutionality of the law and its violation of the rights of property, holding that the game when killed became private property, and the game law violated that right by destroying the property without due process of law. It is the first test case under the law, and the decision is of great interest to the people as well as to the bench and bar of the state.

A singular coincidence appears among on Lake Pepin. The heroine of the novel, "His Private Character," was gend of Maiden Rock. All are familiar with the old Indian fable since it has been elaborated by Mark Twain and others. We have all heard of "Lovers Leap," and his name so indiscriminately applied to many Mississippi bluffs only originated in the legend which Mr. Ross has made the foundation of his novel. As the legend runs, Winons, the Indian princess, was compelled by Bad-Ax, her father, to marry contrary to her desires and to prevent so dire a calamity she preferred death by leaping from some 400 feet into the river.
